My name is Deepa. My Grandma loves me and I love her. I like to visit her. She tells me secrets. But not the secret of the bananas.

I love to eat the bananas that grow in Grandma’s garden. Some bananas are yellow and some are green. The yellow bananas are ripe and sweet. I want to know how they can get so ripe and sweet.
One day I see a big tub in Grandma’s garden. I ask, "What is the tub for?"

Grandma says, "That’s my magic tub."

Next to the tub are big green banana leaves. I ask, "What are the leaves for?"

Grandma says, "They are my magic leaves."

So I ask Grandma, "How does the magic work?"

Grandma says, "Don’t be silly! You ask about too many things. Just go home and get me my pot."

So I run home because I don’t want Grandma to be mad at me.
As I go inside, I smell the sweet bananas.

Then Grandma sends me inside to get her cane.

The next day I visit Grandma again. I still want to know about the magic and the bananas.

Just then, I see the tub with the magic leaves on top.

It is next to Grandma's cane.
First, I take a bunch of bananas and put them under my top.

Next, I sneak past Grandma working in her garden so she can’t see me.
After that I go with Grandma to the market.

But Grandma does not have many bananas to sell at the market.

We ate too many of her bananas. I feel very upset.
After the market, my mother, father and Grandma call me. I tell them I will not take what is not mine to take. They say I need to do something to pay back Grandma.
Grandma’s Bananas

Written by Ursula Nafula and Catherine Groenewald

Inspired by the story: Grandma’s Bananas

Illustrated by George Carrara

www.WordScientists.org

For more books and lesson guides visit us at

Published by the African Storybook Project

Written by Ursula Nafula and Catherine Groenewald

I love to read!