

Poem: Variant Vowels ew & oo

In the light of the moon,
cats mew,
owls hoot,
bats swoop,
a dog lies on a stoop.
And the wind blew.

At sunrise,
a rooster crows,
a cow moos,
a shrew scoots.

In the distance, a train toots
while a cat grooms
as a dog snoozes in the same room.
And the wind blew.

In the light of day,
the bats roost,
the rooster flew to the coop,
the shrew snoops for food,
the children will leave for school soon,
and the cat will sleep 'til noon.
And the wind blew.

Before dusk,
the children whoop
on the way home from school.
They zoom into play
at the end of a busy day, while mom makes a yummy stew.
On a new bone the dogs chew,
as they wait for the day's news.
And the wind blew.
